Illuminating the Macro World

FLOWERS

Vol 2

Welcome to the world of flowers, in detail!

I LOVE nature and have always found beauty everywhere. With the advent of digital photography and macro lenses, the world up close has become an even more intimate place to see how nature shows her brilliance to us, constantly.

I usually have a camera with me wherever I go, or at least my iPhone.

BUT, I always take the time to appreciate the beauty of the moment before photographing it, and yet after all these years of taking photos I had never imagined that I had SO many that I could now use to publish these photobooks and to also use in conjunction with my writing at www.illuminatingthedisconnect.com.

Contemplate the beauty

Look for the detail

Wonder at nature's innate balance of colour, texture, balance

Next time you are looking at a flower, a seed, a fruit, a plant . . . take the time to really look and breathe it in, with all of your senses.

I have not named or labeled the photos on purpose, for knowing beauty is much more than the naming of it.

A close-up photograph of a purple flower, likely an aster, with a bright yellow center. The petals are long and narrow, radiating from the center. The background is dark and out of focus.
